What to do next

Sign the documents and notify the ATO

Congratulations. Your company is registered.

Now you need to arrange for the enclosed documents to be signed. Then you need:

- to give each shareholder their Share Certificate.
- to ensure that the public officer meets the criteria for being a public officer and can satisfy the proof of identity requirements and then arrange for the Notice of Appointment of Public Officer and the relevant proof of identity documents to be sent to the Australian Taxation Office (ATO).
- store the other documents (and copies of the Share Certificates and Notice of Appointment of Public Officer) in the company register.

The company's Constitution is in a separate document. You need to arrange for it to be signed. Then you need to give copies of it to each director and each shareholder and store the original in the company register.
